

SOULS.

A FEELING ADDRESS TO HIS COMRADES OF THE WAR.

MUST BE PAID IN GOLD.

The Debt of the Government to Its War Time Creditors and to Its Worthy Pensioners.

CANTON, O., Aug. 1.—The most enthusiastic delegation and most affecting greeting at the McKinley home was Friday's visit of farmers, working men and old soldiers of Guernsey County, who arrived here shortly before noon. The delegation left Cambridge on the Cleveland & Marietta road, and in a short time struck the flooded lowlands. "For seven miles," said ex-Congressman J. G. Taylor, "the locomotive took its nose through water overflowing the Tuscarawas river, and it was a fight to get through."

At the McKinley residence Mr. Taylor acted as spokesman for the party, which was under G. A. B. auspices. He spoke of the tin plate industry of Cambridge.

Chaplain W. M. McFarland of the United Presbyterian Church, Cambridge, followed, saying:

"I am not to speak, but to see and hear and think and to grasp the hand of the most illustrious friend of labor in the United States in the world."

Turning to Maj. McKinley, who was standing under the folds of an old flag waved above him by an old soldier, the chaplain grasped McKinley's hand, and trembling with emotion said:

"I know of no man who has done more to elevate and dignify labor than you. I know of no man who has put a brighter crown of glory on the brow of honest toil than yourself."

Tears came to many an eye and it was with visible feeling that Maj. McKinley said:

"Col. Taylor, Dr. McFarland, My Comrades and Fellow-Citizens: It gives me the greatest gratification to receive this call from my old friends and neighbors and to feel the pulse of the Guernsey County. I have made many visits to your county in years gone by, and know most of you personally. I know the quality of your population. I know something of the spirit of your patriotism and your devotion to the Union in war, and I know much of your industry and devotion to peace."

"I am glad to meet the representatives of labor who are assembled here this morning. I congratulate them upon the advance that has been made in the tin plate industry to which Col. Taylor has referred. I am glad to know that Republican legislation gave to this country an industry that works and wages to American workmen and brings happiness to American homes. (Great cheering.)"

"I am glad, my fellow citizens, to meet my old comrades of the tin plate industry of the Republic. (Applause.) My comrades of thirty-five years ago, for the war commenced thirty-five years ago, and it is nearly thirty-two years since my close. It seems to me that I have lived a long life, but as I look into the faces of the old soldiers before me to-day, I see that age is stamping its lines on the face of the step is no longer as steady and as firm as it was thirty-five years ago, but their hearts are as loyal to the old flag of the Union (tremendous cheering), and they are just as loyal to national unity than ever. (Applause.)"

"When the war closed there were two great debts resting upon this Government. One was a debt of honor to the pensioners, and the other was a debt of money to the Government. The old soldiers were given pensions, and this great debt of the Government was well paid off by the way. The Government of the United States had reduced nearly two-thirds of that great money debt. (Applause.)"

"They wanted every dollar of the debt paid in the best coin known to the commercial world (great applause), and every dollar of that debt up to this hour has been paid in gold or silver. (Tremendous cheering.) Money that has been paid in gold or silver, and every dollar of that debt, my comrades, yet remains to be paid. (Tremendous cheering.) Money that has been paid in gold or silver, and every dollar of that debt, my comrades, yet remains to be paid. (Tremendous cheering.)"

"There is nobody more interested in maintaining a sound and stable currency than the old soldiers of the Republic. (Applause.) You are right, Major, the money that has been paid in gold or silver, and every dollar of that debt, my comrades, yet remains to be paid. (Tremendous cheering.)"

HENCHMEN OF FILLEY AND KERENS "MIX."

IT WAS IN THE CITY HALL.

John Rosmore and Charles Reder Pummel Each Other While Aldermen Encouraged the Contest.

A Filley man and a Kerens enthusiast came together in the hallway just outside the door of the Chamber of Delegates Saturday and blood flowed, most of it from the Filley man.

The special session of the House had adjourned and members were leaving, when loud talking attracted them to the hall. The two men were followed by a crowd, still more odious epithets, and then a big, red-faced fellow let go his right and landed a stinging blow on the face of a small and younger man.

The young fellow was game and returned the blow. Then bystanders separated them. The big man was John Rosmore, a saloon-keeper, and Charles H. Rider of the Eighth Ward was the Filley man.

BOILER JOB
GOT A SET BACK.
BUILDING COMMITTEE REJECTED
ALL THE BIDS.
THE EXPOSURE CAUSED IT.

New Bids Ordered, but No Change Was Made in Specifications for School Machinery.

The expectation that the monopolies created by the School Board Building Committee in the matter of heating apparatus and boilers for the schools would result in exorbitant prices being demanded, was verified Friday night, when bids were opened.

Six schools were to be supplied and three bids for every school were received.

The lowest bids were so high that even those members of the committee who favored the monopolies hesitated to accept them. They were accordingly rejected.

Instead of preventing further attempts at extortion by changing the specifications the friends of E. M. Bosley and of the fortunate proprietors of the favored heating appliances decided to diversify for new bids on the same specifications, to be opened Monday, Aug. 16.

There is nothing to prevent the contractors whose bids were received Friday putting in the identical bids on Aug. 16. If they are rejected again, the same can be repeated indefinitely, thus forcing the committee to submit to extortion or permit six public schools to remain unheated next winter.

The School Board will be subjected to extortion until the specifications are so altered that Bosley's incandescent boiler, the B. F. Sturtevant fans and engines, the Johnson heat regulators and the St. Louis Radiator Co.'s radiators will not be the only articles with a chance to be accepted.

The four members of the Building Committee, who insist on the monopolies are Elmer E. Lacey, Henry Koenig, Alexander Cudmore and C. G. Penney.

The opposition was led Friday night by Chairman John Kessler, who was aided by Nicholas Berg, who has changed his attitude since the exposure was made by the Post-Dispatch.

Director Charles W. Hequembourg, who voted against the monopolies at the last meeting, was not present Friday night.

President Henry Koenig, who is ex-officio member of the Building Committee, said the bids had been rejected, Director Berg moved that the restrictions requiring incandescent boilers and particular styles of heating appliances be stricken from the specifications. Chairman Kessler supported the motion, pending the action of the board.

At this information President Berg called the board to order and the action was adjourned until the next meeting.

At the instance of Director Penney, a school janitor lauded the incandescent boilers to the skies. He was followed by Director Koenig, who warmly opposed any change in the specifications.

Mr. Berg's motion was accordingly lost. Mr. Bosley's friends pressed their purpose, although they had just been informed by Secretary Penney that the general fund was $100,000 less than the $120,000 expended for repairs next month. In short, the board was never under greater necessity for economy than at this time.

At this information President Berg called the board to order and the action was adjourned until the next meeting.

To the surprise of many the bid of the Branch Heating Company was the lowest on but one school, the Columbia. The lowest bidder on the other five schools was the Front Rank Heating Company. Its bid on the Columbia was $1,100 less than the Front Rank Heating Company's. Its bid on the other schools was $1,100 less than the Front Rank Heating Company's.

The lowest bid for all the schools amounted to $6,000. An appropriation of $20,000 was made for the heating of the schools. To this was added $5,000 appropriated for rebuilding the Clay School, but not used.

There is $2,000 in the building fund, making $12,000 available for the heating of the schools. Even with the lower prices to be obtained through competition and the purchase of cheaper boilers equally as good as the incandescent and cheaper apparatus than that specified by the board, there will not be sufficient money to supply all the schools.

The blow and the Doster Schools are already heated by hot air furnaces. In order to introduce the incandescent boiler as substitute the boilers for furnaces in these schools.

The proposition will now have to be abandoned. Even with the saving on the two schools, and with cheaper boilers and appliances, it will be difficult to squeeze every cent piece of business on the part of the committee.

"In your article yesterday," said Mr. Kessler, "I am glad to appear by Mr. O'Brien's side."

As having tried to prevent this thing only when I heard it was creating comment. On the contrary, I have fought all these speculations from the beginning. The fact that now I would work still harder to prevent the adoption of the specifications, but I could do nothing.

"I asked those in the committee in favor of the incandescent boiler why, if it was so good, there were so few in it in St. Louis. I pointed out to them that it was unsafe, and that when repairs were necessary, the entire boiler would have to be taken to pieces, and that every engineer I had spoken to had told me the incandescent was no better than any other boiler and that it had been partially condemned by the City Boiler Inspector. I told them everything printed yesterday, but it had no effect. They already had their minds made up about the boiler and the heating apparatus, too."

"Who is to profit by this?" the reporter inquired.

"I am not to profit by this," the reporter inquired.

Information has reached police headquarters that George Taylor, the assassin of the late John H. Meek, is hiding in Calhoun County, Ill.

Chief of Detectives Desmond informed the Linn County authorities of the probable discovery of Taylor's hiding place and officers from Carrollton have been sent to Calhoun County, and Fred Heizer, Postmaster of Conrad, Calhoun County, Ill.

The information reached the St. Louis police through Henry Gose, a man who works in the office of the Postmaster of Conrad, Calhoun County, Ill.

OUR ANSWER.
THE COAL TRUST IS BEING FELT.
"BIG SIX" COMBINE PUTS THE SCREWS TO JOBBERS.
CONSUMERS PAY THE FREIGHT.

Offered by the Bridge Monopoly the Coal Trust Has Raised the Price of Fuel.

The "Big Six" coal combine is beginning to apply the screws to the coal jobbers and the jobbers to the consumers.

Commencing to-day the price of coal to the jobbers is increased from 64 to 64 cents per bushel, standard grade. This means a price of 104 cents a bushel for the consumer.

The jobber pays a cent and a half a bushel for hauling the coal to his yard and demands 24 cents profit.

The advance to the consumer is the first result of the combine between the "Big Six" coal distributors and the mine operators of the Belleville District, exposed in the Post-Dispatch of July 15. On July 15 the first advance in the price of coal delivered in East St. Louis took effect, bringing it to 84 cents a ton.

It required until August 1 for the combine to force the price of coal to the consumer. The mine operators and the coal jobbers and small distributors had coal on hand.

According to a gentleman connected with a coal company outside of this combine, who is well posted, the bridge combine and the company that has been formed to control the coal trade in the St. Louis district are responsible for the coal combine and consequent increase in price.

Not only does the existence of the bridge combine render possible the coal monopoly, but the coal monopoly, in turn, makes the bridge combine possible.

Having decided that the coal monopoly would be a good thing, the railroad and the bridge combine conspired with the "Big Six" to force the mine operators into it.

This was accomplished by the use of the railroad monopoly, which the bridge combine and the "Big Six" had formed to control the coal trade in the St. Louis district.

As stated previously in the Post-Dispatch, the "Big Six" are the Consolidated Coal Company, the Crown Coal and Coke Company, the Missouri and Illinois Coal Company, the Madison Coal Company and the DeWitt Coal Company.

The advance in price, which took effect July 15, applied only to East St. Louis. The meeting Tuesday was for the purpose of scaling up the price to about 115 cents a bushel, or an increase of 10 cents a bushel.

One factor in the increase on this side is the charge of 20 cents to the jobber, a bushel, demanded by the bridge combine for transportation across the river.

At the meeting Tuesday the "Big Six" had formed a new company, including the six and known as the Illinois and Missouri Coal Company, for forming the company under the laws of Illinois were made.

There will be another increase in the price of coal delivered in East St. Louis on September 1. It will amount to 20 cents a ton. It will be due to an increase of 10 cents a bushel by the railroad and the bridge combine.

This will be represented as a natural increase, but it will bring the coal to the consumer at a price of 115 cents a bushel. An arbitrary increase is expected to be made by the railroad and the bridge combine.

It is a fact that the price of coal to the consumer is not the best worth the cost to the consumer to from 125 cents to 145 cents per bushel for standard coal.

A standard coal is not the best worth the cost to the consumer to from 125 cents to 145 cents per bushel for standard coal.

The mine owners forced into the combine are actually discredited because of the increased prices work to the benefit of the distributors almost entirely. The operators are restricted in their output.

Profits restricted just that much. The local consumers are suffering the consumers of bituminous, or soft coal, the Eastern anthracite trust, said to be headed by Pierpont Morgan, is rendering it possible for the victims to resort to hard coal.
